

Gasoline Blending with Hydrous Ethanol Reduces Costs and Saves Energy (Minds in Motion)

www.mindsinmotion.net (April 2008): In transport applications, ethanol is usually blended with gasoline to create a versatile, more sustainable motor fuel. New research suggests that the blending of gasoline and ethanol could be made even more sustainable by switching to hydrous (wet), rather than anhydrous (dry), ethanol.....(view the full article)